STATEMENT OF FACTS

Sir:

KANTI JAIN and ALBERT L. RUBIN hereby declare as follows:

1. We are the originally listed co-inventors of the above-identified application. We are familiar with the content of the application, and the proceedings in the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office.
2. Shortly after the office action of September 7 had been received, we met with patent counsel to discuss a response. It was at that time that it was realized that Dr. Barry Smith should have been listed as an inventor.

ROGO 210-NDE

3. We had read the specification and understood the claims prior to our execution of the Declaration/Power of Attorney for the subject patent application. We also reviewed the Declaration/Power of Attorney before we signed it, but did not understand the rules governing co-inventorship. It was only after we had discussed the patent application with our representative after it was filed that we became aware that Dr. Barry Smith had been inadvertently excluded as an inventor for the subject application.
4. Dr. Smith has, in fact, been an integral participant in the development of the invention from its conception. Indeed, Dr. Smith had early discussions with Dr. Jain regarding the issue of islet transplantation. Dr. Smith had experience in growing cells, such as neurons and glial cells ~~ex corpora~~, on collagen, and this experience was used, together with Dr. Jain's experience on islet transplantation, in conceiving of protecting islets with coatings of various materials.
5. Dr. Smith and Dr. Jain collaborated closely in the development of experiments and the evaluation of the data generated, wherein various combinations of collagen and other materials were tested. Together, they determined that the combination of collagen and agarose was the best.
6. When discussions turned to the best way to transplant the agarose/collagen coated islets, Dr. Rubin became involved.

ROGO 210-NDH

His contributions to the invention included assessment and evaluation of data which led to the decision to use larger implants, or "macrobeads". It was determined, by all three (Jain, Rubin and Smith), that the macrobead more closely resembled the native environment of the islets, and thus should be used, rather than smaller implants.

7. The inadvertent omission of Dr. Smith is regretted, and was not made with deceptive intent. We respectfully request that Dr. Smith be added as a co-inventor.
8. We hereby declare that all statements made herein of our own knowledge are true and that all statements made on information and belief are believed to be true; and further that these statements were made with the knowledge that willful false statements and the like so made are punishable by fine or imprisonment, or both, under Section 1001 of Title 18 of the United States Code and that such willful false statements may jeopardize the validity of the application or any patent issued thereon.
